MARKETING PERFORMANCE

Marketing Performance involves evaluating the effectiveness of marketing activities through metrics like conversion rates, customer acquisition cost, and ROI. It includes analysing data, measuring campaign success, and incorporating customer feedback to optimize strategies and achieve business objectives

PERFORMANCE ANALYTICS

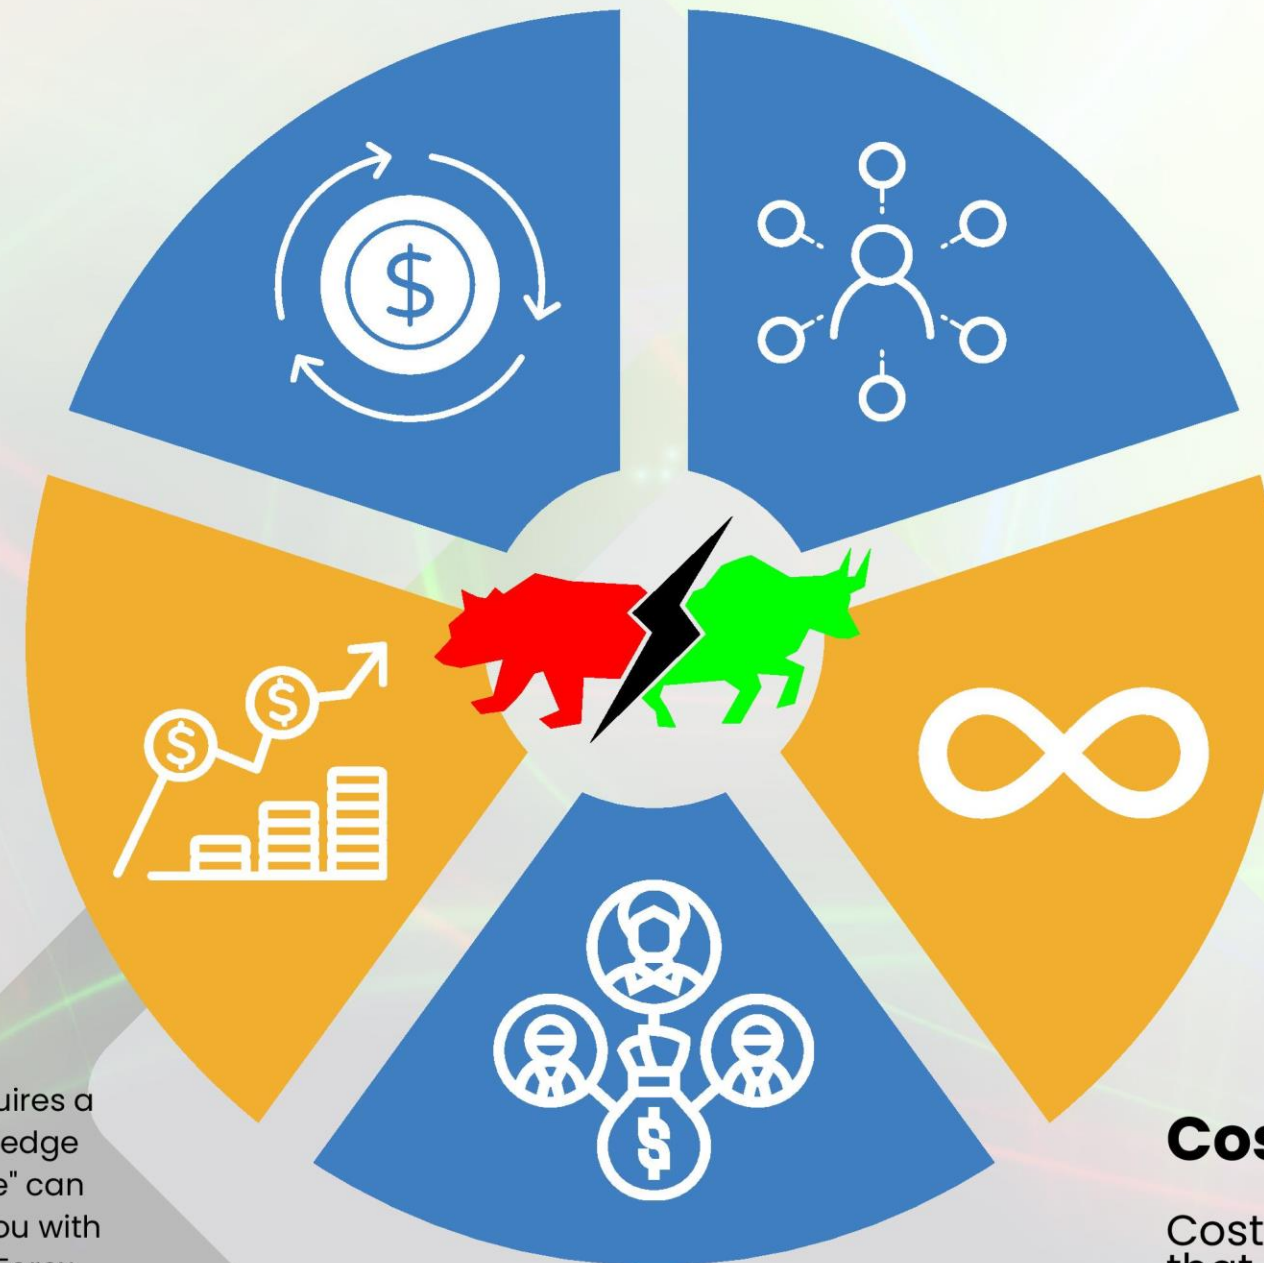

Return on investment (ROI)

A Return on Investment (ROI) in the range of 8% to 15% per month implies a monthly percentage gain or profit relative to the initial investment. It's important to note that such high monthly returns, while not impossible, are often associated with higher risks. Here's a simple illustration of how to calculate the monthly ROI within the given range:

Cost per win

The phrase "Cost per Win" is not a standard financial metric. However, if you mean a high success rate (99% win), it suggests efficiency in achieving positive outcomes. For specific cost efficiency metrics, consider terms like "Cost per Conversion" or "Cost per Successful Transaction."

Analyzing performance analytics in the Forex market for India requires a comprehensive evaluation of various factors. As of my last knowledge update in January 2022, specific details on the "best performance" can change rapidly due to market dynamics. However, I can provide you with general considerations for assessing performance in the Indian Forex market:

Cost per lead

Cost per Lead (CPL) is a marketing metric that calculates the average cost incurred to acquire a single lead. It is determined by dividing the total campaign cost by the number of leads generated. A lower CPL is indicative of a more cost-effective lead generation strategy.

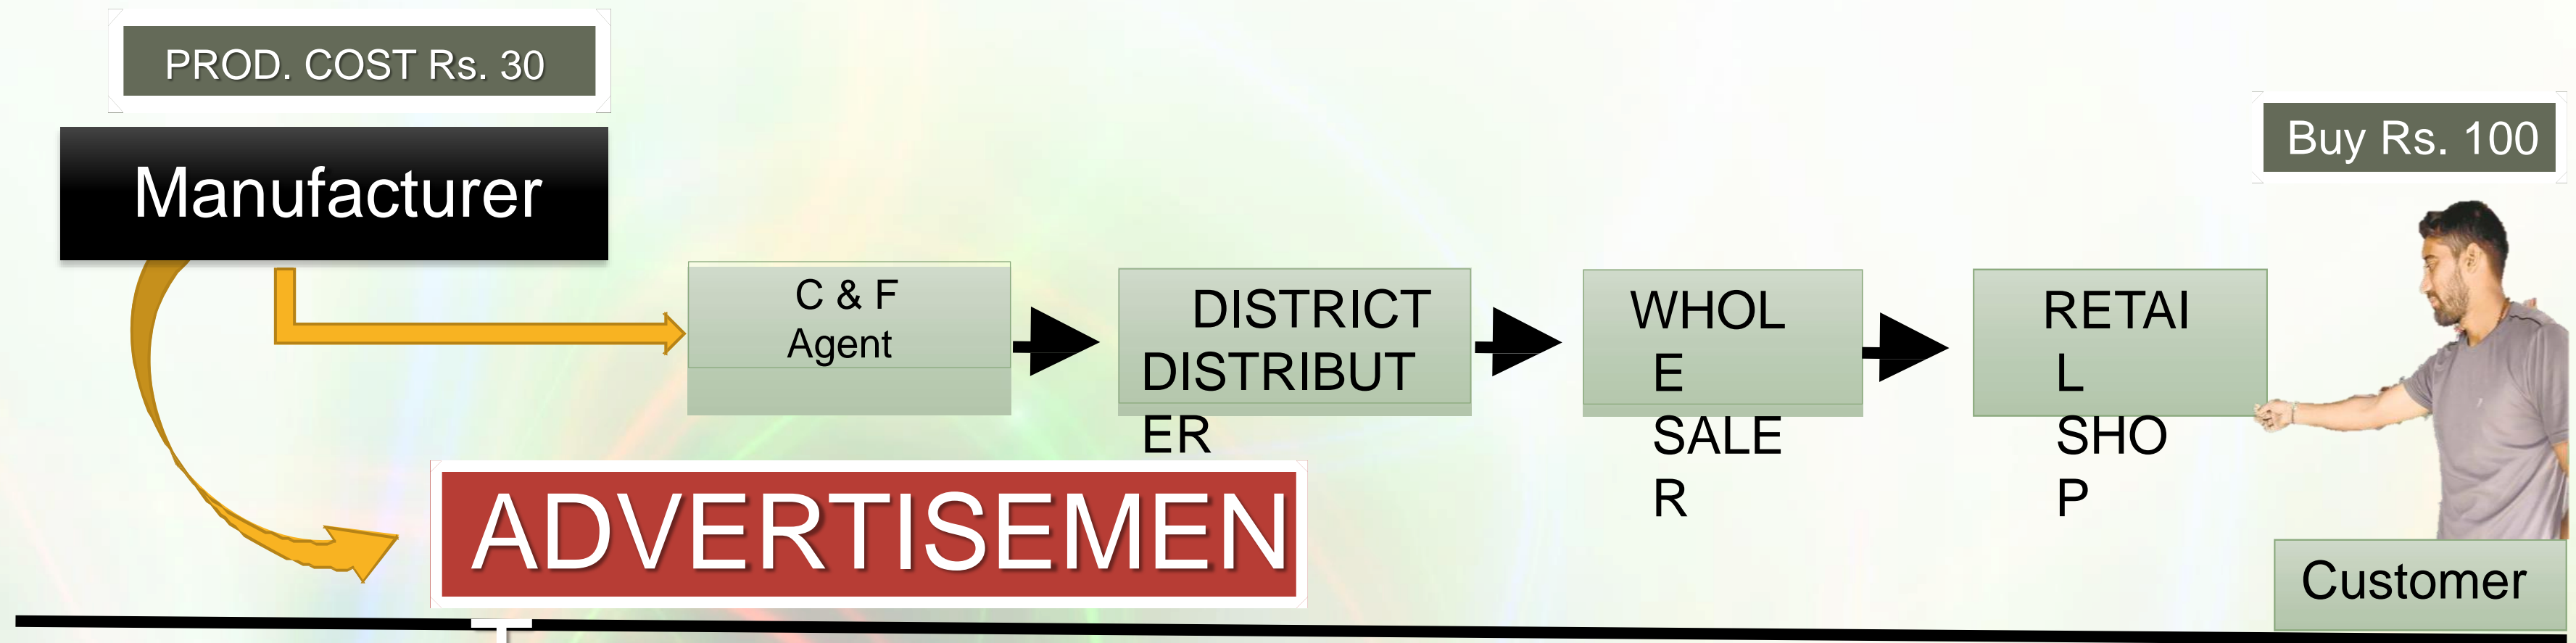

Customer lifetime value

Customer Lifetime Value (CLV or CLTV) is a key business metric that predicts the total revenue a customer is expected to generate throughout their entire relationship with a company. It considers factors like average purchase value, purchase frequency, customer lifespan, and subtracts the customer acquisition cost. A higher CLV indicates greater long-term value from customers.

Cost per acquisition

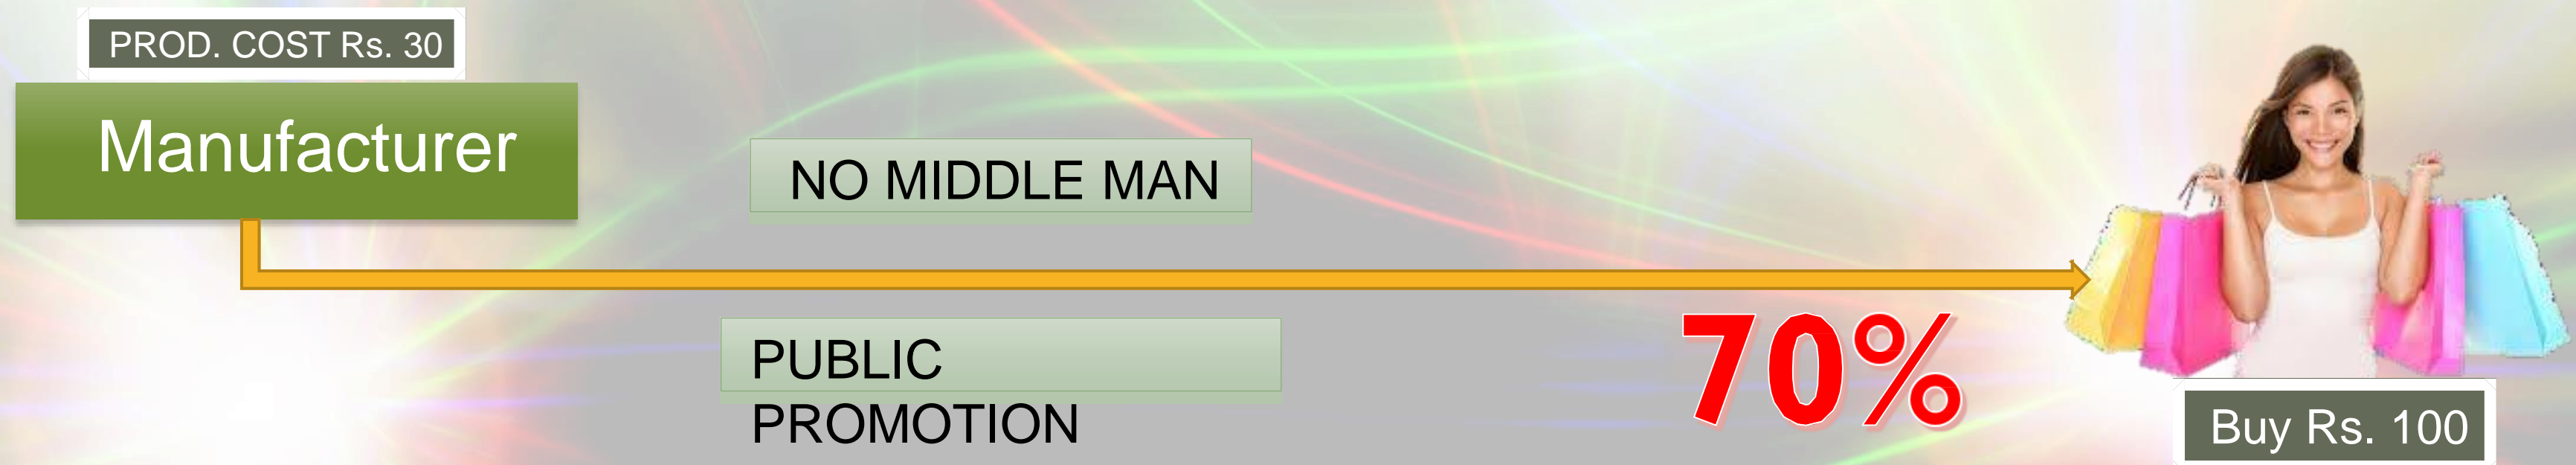

Cost per Acquisition (CPA) is a marketing metric that calculates the average cost incurred to acquire a new customer. It is obtained by dividing the total cost of a marketing campaign by the number of customers acquired through that campaign. A lower CPA signifies a more cost-effective customer acquisition strategy.
